(U//FOUO) Barbie “Video Girl” a Possible Child Pornography Production Method

(U) Beginning in July 2010, Mattel is now selling Barbie Video Girl, a doll with a built in hidden camera. The doll conceals the lens of the camera in a necklace in the front, and has a small LCD screen for video display in her back. The doll can capture thirty minutes of footage, and the videos are downloadable to a computer through a miniUSB port and cable.¹

(U) Proprietary video editing software is not required, and the videos can be copied to a computer. Additionally, you can stream from Video Girl live to your computer using ‘computer mode’², but there is currently not yet any indication that you can stream directly to the Internet.
